BY DENA BISNETTE

The board of commissioners of Diamondhead's Water and Sewerage District heard resident's comments Friday night on their purchase of the sewerage system that comprises half of Diamondhead Utilities, Inc.

The hearing was actually set up as a public information meeting before the system was purchased from owner Peter J. Casano for $150,000, one of the commissioners said.

Casano still owns the water system and, according to Commission Attorney Steve Guice, is supposed to negotiate with the commission regarding its sale after the district completes its takeover of the sewerage and the construction of a new wastewater treatment plant.

The district is a relatively new entity, having been approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors during the latter half of 1989.

The petitioners who asked for creation of the district, most of whom at that time were members of the Diamondhead Water and Sewerage Improvement Association, had the option to ask for a tax to help support the operation and maintenance of any systems the district might acquire, but chose instead to support the project with user fees.

Guice explained Friday that once the $150,000 is paid, the district can begin collecting user fees. Casano is presently collecting them pending formal approval of the sale by the Mississippi Public Service Commission.

The attorney also explained that the purchase was considerably less expensive than the original plan for acquisition, which was to take both systems through imminent domain procedures, which he estimated would have cost from a quarter to half a million dollars and could have taken about a year and a half.

Commission Chairman Dick Nolan said imminent domain may still be used to get the water system.

Guice said the district has applied for a $300,000 line of credit to pay for the sewerage and related fees such as insurance, accounting and legal costs.

In addition, he explained that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control would have probably forced someone, whoever owned the sewerage system at the time, to build the new treatment plant before imminent domain could be finished.

The commission expects to be able to obtain a three-percent loan from BPC by Oct. 1 to pay for $4 million in improvements to the system, which includes the new plant and some related equipment.

Attempts to get Farmer's Home Administration funding would have resulted in a loan at about 17 percent interest, the attorney added.

When the commission opened the floor to questions, many of those addressing the nearly 100 people present expressed concern over the fact that Casano had paid only $1,000 for the systems, with his purchase approved by the PSC. The previous owner was Purcell Corp., which had been the developer Diamondhead.

Several people asked why the commission paid $150,000, but the commissioners replied that the systems are actually worth about $4 million and that they do not know how Casano got such a low price.

Others expressed concern that none of the commissioners have a background in utility operation, but the commission has hired a consulting engineer.

Other comments indicated concern over the possibility of future rate increases, a lack of detail in Guice's description of the commission's plans and how much it would cost to buy the water system.

A few Diamondhead residents took the microphone to criticize the commission for not also purchasing the water system immediately.

The meeting ended abruptly about two hours after it had started when the spectators began to leave.

The commission has set a second public hearing 10 a.m. Feb. 26 at Diamondhead Community Center.

Bingo issue expected to be reconsidered by Senate this week

BY DENA BISNETTE

The bingo issue is not dead in the current session of the Mississippi Legislature, even though the lottery is.

State Senator Victor Frankiewicz said he expects the matter to come up again this week.

The lottery bill defeated in the Senate Wednesday proposed a constitutional amendment that would have allowed voters to decide whether a state lottery could be used to finance the educational reform package proposed by Governor Ray Mabus.

It also included an amendment by Frankiewicz, who wants to make certain that bingo games for charitable purposes can continue.

Frankiewicz said on Friday that a stand-alone bill had been introduced to provide for nonprofit bingo games and that the bill is still in committee. Its provisions are essentially the same as those offered in the amendment to the lottery bill.

Under the senator's proposal, the proceeds from bingo games would have to be provided to churches, veteran's organizations, education, civic projects, religious groups, wildlife conservation or for similar charitable purposes.

An organization would have to exist for five years before it could conduct bingo games and would be unable to bring in a professional to conduct the games based on a percentage of the house, but could hire one or hire security personnel for a pre-set fee.

Frankiewicz said he feels that closing down nonprofit bingos would, in effect, close down churches, veterans organizations and other civic groups which depend on the game for funds.

State Senator Margaret "Wootsie" Tate, who voted against the lottery, said, "I think tying the bingo to the lottery was a deliberate ploy of blackmail. I think a little collusion is going on here."

She said she is opposed to the lottery under any circumstances, but does not have a problem with bingo if it is regulated.

Tate called the legislature's approval of nonprofit bingo several years ago "a horrible decision" because it included no provisions for regulating the game and opened the way for for-profit games to move into Mississippi under the guise of working for charity.

The senator, who said she has been trying to get something done about bingo for three years, said she believes the game is a form of gambling, but not in the same sense as the gambling prohibited in the state constitutional section that presently makes a lottery illegal in Mississippi.

"If we had a problem in this area it should have been resolved 50 years ago," she said. "The problem is enforcement, because now somebody wants to enforce it."

State Representative J.P. Compretta said, "There are some bills pending in the house which could solve our problem with the bingo. I will definitely be working to see that something positive is passed this legislative session to insure that charitable bingo games continue."

"The Hinds County Chancery Court decision, if upheld by the State Supreme Court, would have a devastating effect on the legitimate organizations on the coast who operate bingos."

Service road stop signs catch motorists unaware

BY D.C. HARVILL

Stop signs that appeared mysteriously along a service road adjacent to U.S. 90 in Bay St. Louis last week have been a source of complaints from motorists who utilize the street.

"We've had a decent number of complaints about them, but we didn't put them up," Bay Mayor Edward "Eddie" Favre said Friday.

According to Favre, the State Highway Department maintains the service road. He assumes that agency is responsible for the signs' unannounced appearance.

"We are still trying to see what the situation is and if they are needed. We've got a call in to Mr. Shows (State Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows) but we haven't heard from him yet," Favre said.

In the mean time, the signs have been a source of confusion for people accustomed to driving the service road unfettered by stops.

"Normally we would put signs on a service road if the traffic turning off the main highway is heavy; if traffic is light, we normally would not put up signs," said Randall Fulcher in the department's Jackson office.

According to Assistant District Engineer Rick Kerner, the agency "could very well have put them up." The superintendent in charge of that task was not available for to confirm the agency's involvement.

"They have compounded the problem if anything by putting them up and not giving any notice to the public," said Favre, who admitted to first learning of the signs when he ran one himself.

Anti-roadhunting bill gains House approval

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Mississippi House of Representatives passed an anti-roadhunting bill that, should it become law, will be easier for conservation officers to enforce.

Because the bill, which originated in the State Senate, underwent changes in the House, it will have to be approved by the Senate Wildlife and Marine Resources Committee or a joint House-Senate Conference Committee before being sent to the governor for his signature.

The Senate committee is expected to handle the bill next week if it is sent over by the House.

Roadhunting has come under heavy fire recently because of the danger it presents to people who drive on public roads. It also is opposed by property owners who claim roadhunters use hunting dogs to trespass on their property.

Many opponents say they have been subjected to threats and other intimidation tactics from roadhunters.

Under the new bill, outlaws hunting within 100 feet of the centerline of a public road. It also prohibits having a loaded weapon in a vehicle or on the right-of-way during gun season for deer.

There is, however, a provision which allows for the carrying of loaded handguns for self-defense purposes.

The bill defines unloaded as meaning no shells in the chamber, magazine or clip.

"Roadhunting is a big league problem in my district. I've probably had more complaints about it than anything, except the lottery. All the complaints have been about roadhunting, not from hunters in favor of it. It is hard to justify the practice from a public safety standpoint and a sportsmanship standpoint," said State Senator Victor Frankiewicz Jr.

Land swap hearing set

A public hearing on the Camp Shelby land swap will be conducted at 7 p.m. Monday in the Air National Guard Building, Hewes Avenue, Gulfport.

Jushaway waives hearing, is bound for grand jury

BY D.C. HARVILL

The teen charged in the December murder of a Waveland woman and her granddaughter has waived his right to a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury.

Joe L. Jushaway, 19, is charged with the Dec. 7 murder of Novella Gillum, 67, and her five-year-old granddaughter, Latrice Gillum.

The waiver was made Thursday when Jushaway appeared for the scheduled preliminary hearing, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

The Gillums' bodies were discovered in the kitchen of their Morris Street home in Waveland's Middletown neighborhood the morning after the murders are believed to have occurred.

"He has hired (former district attorney) Albert Nicaise to represent him," Dorn said.

Jushaway lived directly across the street from the Gillums. His case was not presented to the January Grand Jury earlier this month because he had not had a preliminary hearing, Dorn said.

Morning edition topic is Gulf environment

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will hold its first Morning Edition of the year on Thursday, Jan. 25 at 7:30 a.m. at the Wheel Inn Restaurant.

William R. Whitson, assistant director for operations, Gulf of Mexico Program Office, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, will speak on issues and problems that exist in the Gulf's environment and on upcoming plans for the Gulf of Mexico Program.

The Gulf produces approximately 40% of the U.S. commercial fish yield and is the most valuable fishery in the United States. It provides a critical habitat for 75% of the migratory waterfowl traversing the U.S.

Offshore oil and gas from the Gulf account for 90% of production in the United States.

Chamber members are encouraged to attend this informative program to find out what can be done to help this project, according to Libby Roland, Chamber executive director. For more information, call 467-467-9048.

Bay St. Louis Newspapers/The Sea Coast Echo will sponsor the Morning Edition.

Diamondhead commission addresses utility plans

BY DENA BISNETTE

The board of commissioners of Diamondhead's Water and Sewerage District heard resident's comments Friday night on their purchase of the sewerage system that comprises half of Diamondhead Utilities, Inc.

The hearing was actually set up as a public information meeting before the system was purchased from owner Peter J. Casano for $150,000, one of the commissioners said.

Casano still owns the water system and, according to Commission Attorney Steve Guice, is supposed to negotiate with the commission regarding its sale after the district completes its takeover of the sewerage and the construction of a new wastewater treatment plant.

The district is a relatively new entity, having been approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors during the latter half of 1989.

The petitioners who asked for creation of the district, most of whom at that time were members of the Diamondhead Water and Sewerage Improvement Association, had the option to ask for a tax to help support the operation and maintenance of any systems the district might acquire, but chose instead to support the project with user fees.

Guice explained Friday that once the $150,000 is paid, the district can begin collecting user fees. Casano is presently collecting them pending formal approval of the sale by the Mississippi Public Service Commission.

The attorney also explained that the purchase was considerably less expensive than the original plan for acquisition, which was to take both systems through eminent domain procedures, which he estimated would have cost from a quarter to half a million dollars and could have taken about a year and a half.

Commission Chairman Dick Nolan said imminent domain may still be used to get the water system.

Guice said the district has applied for a $300,000 line of credit to pay for the sewerage and related fees such as insurance, accounting and legal costs.

In addition, he explained that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control would have probably forced someone, whoever owned the sewerage system at the time, to build the new treatment plant before imminent domain could be finished.

The commission expects to be able to obtain a three-percent loan from BPC by Oct. 1 to pay for $4 million in improvements to the system, which includes the new plant and some related equipment.

Attempts to get Farmer's Home Administration funding would have resulted in a loan at about 17 percent interest, the attorney added.

When the commission opened the floor to questions, many of those addressing the nearly 100 people present expressed concern over the fact that Casano had paid only $1,000 for the systems, with his purchase approved by the PSC. The previous owner was Purcell Corp., which had been the developer Diamondhead.

Several people asked why the commission paid $150,000, but the commissioners replied that the systems are actually worth about $4 million and that they do not know how Casano got such a low price.

Others expressed concern that none of the commissioners have a background in utility operation, but the commission has hired a consulting engineer.

Other comments indicated concern over the possibility of future rate increases, a lack of detail in Guice's description of the commission's plans and how much it would cost to buy the water system.

A few Diamondhead residents took the microphone to criticize the commission for not also purchasing the water system immediately.

The meeting ended abruptly about two hours after it had started when the spectators began to leave.

The commission has set a second public hearing 10 a.m. Feb. 26 at Diamondhead Community Center.

Bingo issue expected to be reconsidered by Senate this week

BY DENA BISNETTE

The bingo issue is not dead in the current session of the Mississippi Legislature, even though the lottery is.

State Senator Victor Frankiewicz said he expects the matter to come up again this week.

The lottery bill defeated in the Senate Wednesday proposed a constitutional amendment that would have allowed voters to decide whether a state lottery could be used to finance the educational reform package proposed by Governor Ray Mabus.

It also included an amendment by Frankiewicz, who wants to make certain that bingo games for charitable purposes can continue.

Frankiewicz said on Friday that a stand-alone bill had been introduced to provide for nonprofit bingo games and that the bill is still in committee. Its provisions are essentially the same as those offered in the amendment to the lottery bill.

Under the senator's proposal,

the proceeds from bingo games would have to be provided to churches, veteran's organizations, education, civic projects, religious groups, wildlife conservation or for similar charitable purposes.

An organization would have to exist for five years before it could conduct bingo games and would be unable to bring in a professional to conduct the games based on a percentage of the house, but could hire one or hire security personnel for a pre-set fee.

Frankiewicz said he feels that closing down nonprofit bingos would, in effect, close down churches, veterans organizations and other civic groups which depend on the game for fundraising.

State Senator Margaret "Wootsie" Tate, who voted against the lottery, said, "I think tying the bingo to the lottery was a deliberate ploy of blackmail. I think a little collusion is going on here."

She said she is opposed to the lottery under any circumstances, but does not have a problem with bingo if it is regulated.

Tate called the legislature's approval of nonprofit bingo several years ago "a horrible decision" because it included no provisions for regulating the game and opened the way for for-profit games to move into Mississippi under the guise of working for charity.

The senator, who said she has been trying to get something done about bingo for three years, said she believes the game is a form of gambling, but not in the same sense as the gambling prohibited in the state constitutional section that presently makes a lottery illegal in Mississippi.

"If we had a problem in this area it should have been resolved 50 years ago," she said. "The problem is enforcement, because now somebody wants to enforce it."

State Representative J.P. Compretta said, "There are some bills pending in the house which could solve our problem with the bingo. I will definitely be working to see that something positive is passed this legislative session to insure that charitable bingo games continue."

"The Hinds County Chancery Court decision, if upheld by the State Supreme Court, would have a devastating effect on the legitimate organizations on the coast who operate bingos."

Morning edition topic is Gulf environment

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will hold its first Morning Edition of the year on Thursday, Jan. 25 at 7:30 a.m. at the Wheel Inn Restaurant.

William R. Whitson, assistant director for operations, Gulf of Mexico Program Office, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, will speak on issues and problems that exist in the Gulf's environment and on upcoming plans for the Gulf of Mexico Program.

The Gulf produces approximately 40% of the U.S. commercial fish yield and is the most valuable fishery in the United States. It provides a critical habitat for 75% of the migratory waterfowl traversing the U.S.

Offshore oil and gas from the Gulf account for 90% of production in the United States.

Chamber members are encouraged to attend this informative program to find out what can be done to help this project, according to Libby Roland, Chamber executive director. For more information, call 467-467-9048.

Bay St. Louis Newspapers/The Sea Coast Echo will sponsor the Morning Edition.

Service road stop signs catch motorists unaware

BY D.C. HARVILL

Stop signs that appeared mysteriously along a service road adjacent to U.S. 90 in Bay St. Louis last week have been a source of complaints from motorists who utilize the street.

"We've had a decent number of complaints about them, but we didn't put them up," Bay Mayor Edward "Eddie" Favre said Friday.

According to Favre, the State Highway Department maintains the service road. He assumes that agency is responsible for the signs' unannounced appearance.

"We are still trying to see what the situation is and if they are needed. We've got a call in to Mr. Shows (State Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows) but we haven't heard from him yet," Favre said.

In the mean time, the signs have been a source of confusion for people accustomed to driving the service road unfettered by stops.

"Normally we would put signs on a service road if the traffic turning off the main highway is heavy; if traffic is light, we normally would not put up signs," said Randall Fulcher in the department's Jackson office.

According to Assistant District Engineer Rick Kerner, the agency "could very well have put them up." The superintendent in charge of that task was not available for to confirm the agency's involvement.

"They have compounded the problem if anything by putting them up and not giving any notice to the public," said Favre, who admitted to first learning of the signs when he ran one himself.

Anti-roadhunting bill gains House approval

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Mississippi House of Representatives passed an anti-roadhunting bill that, should it become law, will be easier for conservation officers to enforce.

Because the bill, which originated in the State Senate, underwent changes in the House, it will have to be approved by the Senate Wildlife and Marine Resources Committee or a joint House-Senate Conference Committee before being sent to the governor for his signature.

The Senate committee is expected to handle the bill next week if it is sent over by the House.

Roadhunting has come under heavy fire recently because of the danger it presents to people who drive on public roads. It also is opposed by property owners who claim roadhunters use hunting dogs to trespass on their property.

Many opponents say they have been subjected to threats and other intimidation tactics from roadhunters.

Under the new bill, outlaws hunting within 100 feet of the centerline of a public road. It also prohibits having a loaded weapon in a vehicle or on the right-of-way during gun season for deer.

There is, however, a provi-

Jushaway waives hearing, is bound for grand jury

BY D.C. HARVILL

The teen charged in the December murder of a Waveland woman and her granddaughter has waived his right to a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury.

Joe L. Jushaway, 19, is charged with the Dec. 7 murder of Novella Gillum, 67, and her five-year-old granddaughter, Latrice Gillum.

The waiver was made Thursday when Jushaway appeared for the scheduled preliminary hearing, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

The Gillums' bodies were discovered in the kitchen of their Morris Street home in Waveland's Middletown neighborhood the morning after the murders are believed to have occurred.

"He has hired (former district attorney) Albert Nicaise to represent him," Dorn said.

Jushaway lived directly across the street from the Gillums. His case was not presented to the January Grand Jury earlier this month because he had not had a preliminary hearing, Dorn said.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Give me a break

He grew up with little guidance on the streets of San Diego. Murderous gangs roamed all around him, tempting him, taunting him and threatening him.

One terrible, fateful day, rival gangs locked up in mortal combat. When all the shooting was over, his brother lay dead in a pool of blood.

A little more, and he would have slipped through childhood unscathed, despite the deadly, frequent fireworks which lit up his neighborhood with an unwelcome staccato. Unfortunately, he, too, caught a back full of buckshot one unhappy day, and, to this day, he wears the unsightly scars to prove it.

The New York Mets had found him very helpful in their ascent to the World Series in 1986, as he played part-time at third base and the outfield while batting .277 with 12 home runs and 43 RBIs. He singled with two outs and scored the tying run in New York's dramatic, 10th-inning rally against Boston in game 6.

Yet, because of his rough childhood, the Mets' management viewed him as a negative influence in the clubhouse. So, without fanfare, they shipped him off to the San Diego Padres. Of course, no prophet is without honor, except in his hometown. So the Padres peddled him to the San Francisco Giants after a scant few months in their uniform.

The rest is history, of course. However, the lesson is much larger, much more riveting than the history itself; for, it forces all of us to examine the many ways in which we routinely X people out of our business, our friendship and our life itself.

Granted that no one wants trouble. That is usually our facile excuse. With that rationale, we can eliminate whomever we desire from our relationships or business, our friendship and favor. Even if we do not wish others evil by excluding them, it is so much simpler to brand them troublemakers than to go through the pains of trying to work out a relationship with them.

This was the kind of treatment and hurt registered by Kevin Mitchell as he was shunted from the New York Mets to the San Diego Padres to the San Francisco Giants. The shadows seemed to be closing in on him as he reflected:

"Getting traded again hurt a lot. I thought the Padres got me because they needed me, and would keep me for a long time."

Then came the year of 1989, when Kevin enjoyed one of the best ever by a baseball player, batting nearly .300, slamming 47 home runs and driving in 125 runs. For these feats, all well as creditable fielding, he was declared the National League MVP.

Upon receiving the Most Valuable Player award for being the outstanding player in the National League for 1989, Kevin found himself moving from the shadows into the glaring spotlights.

"I'm very happy about it," he mused. "It means a lot. I can walk around with my head up, especially in my home town. I can walk around, and people will say, 'There's Kevin Mitchell. He's the MVP. It's a great honor.'"

But there was much more to it than that. More importantly, Kevin was not a troublemaker at all. On the contrary, he proved to be a great team player, a good clubhouse influence and a mutual battery-charger to his smooth-swinging teammate, Will Clark.

How many untold millions of people in Kevin's shoes are pleading with us to discount their background and give them a break?

You can just hear them: "I'm not asking you to be imprudent or to take foolish risks. All I ask is, give me a break in life."

Christian poets sought by Gulfport group

The American Arts Association is seeking Christian poets who might be interested in getting their works published at no cost. Poems to be considered may be sent to: American Arts Association, Department B, 102 Estes Drive, Gulfport, MS 39503.

The American Arts Association is a group of artists from Maine to Washington, North Dakota to Texas who enjoy the relating of God's word in the form of poetry.

Currently the group is working on a set of works entitled, "His Precious Love." No poem is printed without a signed release from the author granting one-time publishing rights. The association lays no claim to any poem. All rights are retained by the author. There is no fee for the printing of a poem.

The American Arts Association is dedicated to furthering the work of our Lord through assisting Christian writers in getting their literary works into print.

Porters to speak Monday

Former Bay St. Louis residents, Ann and Ed Porter, will describe their roles as house parents for mentally handicapped adult males Monday in a special presentation at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Maggio, 123 Ulman Ave., Bay St. Louis.

Their faith ministry is called "The Mustard Seed" and is located in Theodore, Ala.

Several men from the home will be present to sing for those in attendance. The public is invited to head the Porters share their experiences, beginning at 10 a.m.

Story hour titles told

Pre-school story times are conducted each Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the City-County Public Library and at 10:30 a.m. each Friday at the Waveland Library.

Wednesday's theme will be "Trains." Children will hear the stories "The Little Engine That Could" and "Who's In Rabbit's House?" Each child will receive a train coloring page to color and take home.

Waveland Library presents "Spiders and Webs," "The Hungry Billy Goat," and "The Monkey and the Crocodile." A physical activity will be based on the story, "This is the House Where I Live."

The second week they received practical training by jumping from 34-foot and 25-foot towers. The final week they made five static-line parachute jumps including one night jump.

HEART ATTACKS DON'T KEEP OFFICE HOURS.

WHEN EVERY SECOND COUNTS, YOU CAN COUNT ON US.

In the critical moments after a heart attack, immediate expert medical attention is crucial to survival. There's no time to try and track down a cardiologist. At Slidell Memorial Hospital, our Cardiology Team is at the ready anytime, all the time. Your call puts into action a well-honed emergency assistance plan. Even as the Emergency One ambulance speeds to the scene, skilled cardiac surgeons and other specialists prepare for the patient's arrival. By radio, cardiologists instruct emergency medical technicians on how to stabilize the patient enroute.

Not a second is wasted.

THE 24 HOUR CARDIOLOGY TEAM.

Slidell Memorial Hospital is the first in our area to provide 'round-the-clock emergency cardiology care. Timely specialized treatment by our team of highly-trained doctors, nurses, and technicians has given literally hundreds of heart attack victims a second chance... and a future.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's first Morning Edition for 1990 will be Thursday morning. The event gets underway at 7:30 a.m. at the Wheel Inn Restaurant, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

This month's speaker will be William R. Whitson, assistant Director of Operations, Gulf of Mexico Program Office, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Mr. Whitson will be talking about issues and problems that exist in the Gulf of Mexico environment and upcoming plans for the Gulf of Mexico Program.

The Gulf of Mexico is a very valuable body of water to Mississippi, as well as to the nation as a whole.

We as Americans need to address many issues which affect the Gulf of Mexico.

The Gulf of Mexico Program has been designed to address the problems we face today in the gulf.

The program provides a mechanism for addressing complex problems that will cross state, federal and international jurisdictional lines.

One of the ways we in Hancock County are already working to help with the Gulf of Mexico is with the several coastal clean-ups in which we have been involved.

As a matter of fact, Hancock County was among the first to have a beach clean-up.

Hancock County has been involved in several coastal clean-ups in connection with the Mississippi Marine Trash Task Force, of which I am a member.

I hope to see you at the Morning Edition on Thursday morning.

As we in the United States begin a new decade, a head count of the nation's citizens will once again be underway.

A census has been taken in the United States every ten years since 1790, which is a very long time.

I can recall in 1970 when Hancock County's census wasn't too accurate because of the dispersement of residents due to Hurricane Camille and a second census had to be taken later.

A census is taken for many reasons and the most important is to find out how many people we have in this nation and where they reside.

Our Congressional leaders' areas are all selected upon the population information, as well as the distribution of federal funds.

Information we have received indicates census forms will be mailed to 95% of all households around the third week of March.

Five of six households will receive a short form, which has 14 questions. The balance will receive an additional 45 questions.

Over the years, census takers have used all modes of transportation to reach residents in order to take a head count.

The fast world of computers has helped in processing the information which the public supplies on the census forms.

The first census took 18 months to complete for less than four million folks.

Just think, in 1990 some 88 million census forms will be mailed, along with another 11 million to be hand delivered.

Those who received a census form and do not return it by April 1 will be contacted in person about mid-April.

The data from the 1990 census is very important and I urge everyone to complete their forms when received and return them as soon as possible.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Avoiding hazardous waste solution by mob rule

The Mississippi Legislature is wrestling with the troublesome question of hazardous waste treatment—an issue that could dramatically impact on the state's economic development efforts.

Simply put, the state has no acceptable hazardous waste treatment/disposal capacity now, and other states are beginning to refuse to accept the waste from Mississippi.

Meanwhile, some 1,000 hazardous waste generators in the state, including many manufacturers, are wondering how they will dispose of the waste they are generating.

The Legislature is expected to develop a solution to the problem in this session, and the Mississippi Economic Council is urging prompt action by legislators.

But a related problem has popped up. Some legislators want to rely on local referenda for selection of hazardous waste treatment sites—an idea opposed by both the legislative Environmental Protection Council and MEC.

Comes now a decision from the Fourth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals on that point.

That court, in ruling on a West Virginia hazardous waste law which permitted local option hazardous waste facilities, said the state's responsibility to protect the public outweighs local residents' objections to the location of a treatment site.

Such local option, the court added, could lead to waste disposal decisions being made by "mob rule."

Mississippi needs to get on with its work of solving its hazardous waste treatment problem, and it needs to avoid decisions by "mob rule."

Mississippi on the move and has set course for progress

Here at the midpoint of this administration, two things are certain—Mississippi is on the move, and we have set a course for progress.

Now Mississippi must keep moving, faster and further, if we want a bright future.

Just how far have we come over two years?

More Mississippians are working than ever before.

Our children are getting a better education.

More of our citizens have access to quality health care.

We are spending tax dollars more wisely, and we're investing in the future.

Government is more efficient and hopefully more honest.

We are more aware of the value of the environment and what we have to do to preserve it.

In short, Mississippi has truly become a state of change and chances, of promise and possibility—a state where every citizen has a better opportunity to work and prosper. You have made these gains possible because of your commitment to the future.

In the last two years, unemployment dropped below double digits for the first time in years to the November level of 69 percent, far below the 13 percent unemployment of just a few years before. More than 42,000 Mississippians are working today than just two years ago.

The good economic news does not end there. In the latest report on per capita income, we had the largest increase in the Southeast and the sixth largest in the United States.

Also, private companies invested nearly $2.3 billion in Mississippi during the first 18 months of this term—dramatic evidence of growth in our state.

After years of neglect, we are repairing and renovating state facilities instead of allowing them to crumble. We have broadened access to health care as never before.

We are standing tall against outsiders who would try to pollute Mississippi with their waste. We are cracking down on drug users as well as drug peddlers.

Despite an explosion in the number of state prisoners, we are keeping criminals off the streets.

There is no area where the progress has been greater or more exciting than in education. Our progress is undeniable, both in test scores and in the quality of our lives.

We have charted a course for progress. Now we must fix our sights on the future. I am committed to dramatic improvements through Mississippi's BEST—Better Education for Success Tomorrow. This program is the key to our future, and we must fund it fully this year without a tax increase.

One way to fully fund education reform without a tax increase is a state lottery, which must be approved by the people of Mississippi.

I am disappointed that a group of senators has decided not to let the people vote. These senators said by their action that you should have no say in this issue, that democracy really does not work.

I do not believe this issue is over yet. We have to have full education reform this year, and we ought to fund it fully this year without a tax increase.

We have delayed long enough. Our children deserve the best now.

Compretta now on Oversight Committee

Representative J. P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis has been named to serve on the Legislative Oversight Committee of the Mississippi House Corporation.

The appointment was announced this week by House Speaker Tim Ford. Compretta was named to fill a vacancy on the oversight committee caused by the resignation of former Representative Kane Ditto, currently Mayor of Jackson.

The Mississippi House Corporation previously known as the Mississippi Housing Finance Corporation, administers the state's home loans program to assist in providing adequate residential and rental housing to persons of low or moderate income.

Compretta, who represents House District 122 in Hancock County, is chairman of the House Local and Private Legislation Committee and immediate past chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER).

Other committee assignments include Conservation and Water Resources; Judiciary "A"; Ways and Means; and State Library.

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

Without reading, you can't write
--and life becomes harder

I was discussing term papers with somebody from one of my classes at University of Southern Mississippi and he asked me to teach him to write.

Well, this guy was obviously joking because when a person reaches graduate school, he'd better know how to write. Once that bachelor's degree or even that associate's degree is obtained, he has usually written quite a lot, even in some of the vocational-technical programs.

Besides, life would be harder without being able to write--or to read.

I read a lot about illiteracy in Mississippi, particularly in high school and college students. Those secondary school people who can't read or write a coherent sentence interest me in particular because I used to teach English.

When I was an undergraduate preparing to teach, I remember giving a couple of people a hand on some really dreadful term papers. These folks were disorganized, but they were still literate.

Some big problems in their writing, in my opinion, were motivation and practice. They were stuck with assigned topics and didn't write often.

If you're not interested in it, you're not going to be able to write it as well as if you cared about it. That's why it's a lot easier for me to write about a football game or an interesting criminal trial than about a landfill or a sewer problem. But, there are people who are interested but still can't do it.

And if you can't write in the first place, how can you practice your skills?

I have refined my writing skills through daily practice, but exposure to good writing through reading also helps.

Illiterate people aren't exposed to writing at all because they can't read. There are folks out there trying to fool people into believing they're literate, using television and radio to get their news and functioning as best they can.

I saw one the other day, trying to order food in a restaurant. A waitress kept trying to refer him to the menu on the wall behind her, and he looked directly at it but it obviously meant nothing to him.

We're throwing volunteer effort and money at this problem, and we are reaching some of these people. There are programs in the schools, like Chapter I, designed to catch children with reading problems, and there is adult tutoring.

We aren't reaching everybody. Word gets around about literacy programs, whether it's written or broadcasted or just repeated from one person to another. Some people are too embarrassed or frightened to seek help.

The chance that someone like you or me is going to come across an adult who can't read at least once in our lifetimes is pretty good. One of the hardest things to do is to get that person talking about it.

Chances are that you've found out about the illiteracy by accident, because many of these folks are actually very intelligent and hide it well. When you find out, offer assistance.

If you don't know how to help a person who wants to learn to read, call Ruth Krebs, a representative of the local adult literacy program, at 467-5282 or call one of the local libraries.

If you're not motivated to help, just think of what it would be like if you couldn't read.

Pskikogios to serve as literacy project consultant

Peter Pskikogios has been named the VISTA volunteer to work with the Hancock County Adult Literacy Education, a project of the Hancock County Library System.

VISTA (Volunteers In Service To America) is a grant the Mississippi Department of Education received to improve the literacy services throughout the state.

Pskikogios, of Long Beach, will be consulting with all Gulf Coast literacy project to assist in recruiting tutors and other volunteers for the programs, along with recruiting participants, and visiting businesses and churches to recruit and publicize the programs.

"We are pleased to have Peter working with the program here in Hancock County," said Ruth Krebs, project coordinator in Hancock County, "and we hope to visit businesses and churches throughout the county to recruit volunteers and participants."

The Adult Education Literacy Program was established as a project of the Hancock County Public Library System in 1987, with funds from a Job Partnership Training Act Grant through the State Department of Education and with local library system funds through Hancock County and the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveand.

Further information concerning the Adult Literacy Education Program may be obtained by calling Krebs at 467-5282.

Lung association sponsors poster contest

The ninth annual poster art contest on the "Health Hazards of Smoking" is being conducted by the Mississippi Lung Association.

"The contest is designed to emphasize the value of lung health and to give Mississippi students in grades three through 12 an opportunity to participate in an art education project," said Dr. Boyd Shaw of Jackson, president of the Christmas Seal voluntary health organization.

"This is one of many projects sponsored by the Mississippi Lung Association to create awareness among all students about the hazards of cigarette smoking," continued Shaw.

"We are trying to reinforce what our lung association staff is teaching our students through presentations in the classroom and encouraging them to express their support for a smoke-free generation through artistic creativity. This art project helps all students in each school become aware of the new 'in thing to do,' namely, not smoke."

Teachers select winning posters and submit them to the Mississippi Lung Association for statewide judging. A first place winner will be selected from each grade and prizes will be awarded to these students.

Two of these posters will be selected as the Mississippi Lung Association's Anti-Smoking Posters of the Year. These two students will receive special awards at the 1990 MLA annual meeting in Jackson.

Announcements giving complete details of the contest have been sent to Mississippi schools and art teachers. Anyone needing further information may contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9865, Jackson, MS 39286.

Mail-in registration support urged by diverse coalition

A broad-based coalition of Mississippi organizations joined Secretary of State Dick Molpus Monday in voicing support for mail-in voter registration.

A bill to establish a system for mail-in voter registration in Mississippi has been filed for consideration during the current session of the Legislature. Announcement of the coalition's formation was made by Molpus and members of the coalition at a Jackson news conference.

The coalition groups are the AFL-CIO, American Association of Retired Persons, Coalition for Citizens with Disabilities, Common Cause, Election Commissioners Association of Mississippi, Junior League of Jackson, Mississippi American Federation of Teachers, Mississippi Association of Educators, Mississippi League of Women Voters, Mississippi Municipal Association, Mississippi Municipal Clerks, Assessors and Collectors Association, Mississippi Paralysis Association and the Retired Teachers Association of Mississippi.

"We need mail-in registration to remove the last remaining barriers to participation in the democratic process," Molpus said.

"Twenty-four states allow mail-in registration. It works well in places as diverse as California and South Carolina, Texas and Tennessee," Molpus noted. "It's time for us to let it work in Mississippi."

Volunteers sought for Bay Little Theatre committees

ANNOUNCEMENT

A Comprehensive Plan for Hancock County is being developed under the sponsorship of the Hancock County Planning Commission. The Planning Commission invites Hancock County residents to attend the monthly Planning Commission meetings to hear and comment on the progress of the Hancock County Comprehensive Plan. Representatives from the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District will present their findings and report on the Plan's schedule at each meeting.

The next Hancock County Planning Commission meeting is scheduled for February 1, 1990, at 4 p.m. in the Board of Supervisor's Meeting room on the second floor of the Hancock County Courthouse on Main Street in Bay St. Louis. All county residents are encouraged to attend.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Bay-Waveland Garden Club

The first meeting of 1990 for the Bay-Waveland Garden Club was opened Jan. 11 by president Nanette Murphree. The prayer was led by Lynn Nybo followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. The treasurer report was read, approved and filed for audit. The minutes for the December meeting were read and approved.

A very interesting report on the culture of cattleya and phalaenopsis orchids was presented by Cindy Lowe.

Becky Weston gave a talk on birds along our shores.

Audrey Baud reported that Arbor Day planting at Beauvoir will be Feb. 9 at 1:30 p.m. The club's planting will be at the Fitness Trail on Hwy. 90 on Feb. 12 at 2 p.m. Magnolias will be planted in honor of the club's past presidents. Lynn Nybo is co-chairman of this phase of Arbor Day and urges participation by the general public interested in the proceedings.

Olga Skelton reported the senior citizens really appreciate the plants she delivers to shut-ins.

"Please help keep a supply of plants on hand. If you can help, call her at 467-4276," a spokesperson said.

A round of applause and sincere thanks to John Holmes, an honorary member, for fixing the club's broken pipes at the Garden Center. He also installed a great overhead lighting system that greatly enhances flower shows and other exhibitions.

Congratulations to Alice Holmes and Lynn Nybo. They have completed years of study and practice to become nationally accredited master flower show judges. This is the top ranking one can achieve as a judge in the garden club.

Ruth Logan has accepted an appointment to be the corresponding secretary for the rest of this term. She replaces Polly Ramsey who resigned due to illness in the family.

Aggie Thompkins displayed the new Garden Club Cook Books which she compiled, produced and edited for the club. They contain recipes from club members who are great cooks. The books are on sale by club members for $6.

Kathleen Kemp reported that plans for the pilgrimage are on schedule. If anyone would like to be a hostess, let her know.

Alice Holmes will attend the Solid Waste Management Workshop at the Coliseum in Jackson.

Library arrangements were made by Terry Brotmeyer for Waveland and by Tootsie Bookhart of Bay St. Louis.

Garden of the Month of January for Bay St. Louis went to Foster and Ileana Luke, 301 de Montluzin.

The program presented by Mrs. Helen Currie of Pass Christian was on using natural fibers for spinning and weaving, and plants for making dyes and colorings. The hangings and clothing she displayed were outstanding.

Hostesses were introduced by chairman Alice Holmes. They were Regina Blaize, Julia Blaize, Crystal Burrows, Sharon Kleinpeter, Pat Schott and Elizabeth St. Pe.

Hancock County Historical Society

By Page Poolson

The monthly Hancock County Historical Society meeting should not have been missed. Bay-Waveland Yacht Club did a wonderful job of preparing a delightful meal. A soup course of fish, crab, etc., in a cream sauce was mouth-watering indeed. There was an entree of two kinds of fried fish, cat and mullet, accompanied by delicately flavored carrots, boiled potatoes crowned with cheddar cheese and brussel sprouts and the Yacht Club's own homemade bread rolls, a green salad topped just right with an Italian dressing, ending with the citric-like taste of lime jello.

Our speaker, Dr. Thomas McIlwain, showed slides of our area's fishermen and their catches. There were many varied kinds of fish that we are unaccustomed to having on our daily menus, but Dr. McIlwain assured the society members that they could and should be tried, and he supplied recipes enabling us to do just that! Hence, the theme of his talk was aptly titled 'Are You Kidding? That Fish is Edible!'

Dr. McIlwain spoke most credibly and interestingly on the 40 types of fish found in this area which enlightened our group most pleasurably.

We are in his debt for many added dishes to our daily meals. He is currently working on a governmental program for our area fishermen to save their business...a commodity we don't wish to and cannot do without.

ATTENTION...ATTENTION

We are shouting boldly and loudly that our 1990 membership drive is on! If you have been wanting to be a part of our wonderful, fun organization, we urge that you please do so, and welcome!

Also, if your membership dues are maturing this month, you may either send them in to the Hancock County Historical Society, 128 Court Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520 or bring them in personally. We'd be glad to see you.

We urge that you do so for the sake of the society, as we have begun such tremendous work and hope to be able to continue throughout this administration and the next, etc., etc. Remember, ladies and gentlemen, all of our endeavors are for you. We appreciate it, and thanks.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly

WAVELAND

Tops No. 233 Waveland met Tuesday, Jan. 9, at the Waveland Public Library. Rose Necaise was the week's best loser with 4 1/2 pounds.

Catharine Matherne has stayed within her goal for 13 weeks and has attained KOPS status.

Lynda Wyman won the Leaf Contest. A Perfect Attendance charm will be presented to those members who weigh in during every meeting during the months of January, February and March and must stay for the meeting to be eligible.

State Recognition Day (SRD) will be March 23-24 in Biloxi. The club's Valentine's Day contest is underway.

Tops' Jan. 16 best loser was Eileen Walker with 3 1/2 pounds. Linda Wyman received a charm and a charm bracelet for reaching half-way-to-goal status. Kathy Boyet received charms for 10- and 20-pound losses. Jeannette Necaise received a charm for reaching a 40-pound loss, and Charlotte will receive a 50-pound loss charm. The club welcomed one new member.

Tops 233 meets every Tuesday at the Waveland Public Library. Weigh-ins are from 6 to 6:45 p.m. with the meeting immediately following weigh-in.

Anyone interested in losing weight the sensible way and maintaining weight loss is welcome to visit. Interested persons are invited to call Charlotte at 467-5790 for more information.

Life Underwriters

Gerald Reed of Dyersburg, Tenn. will be the featured speaker at the January meeting of the Gulf Coast Association of Life Underwriters.

Reed is state manager of South Mississippi for Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society. He began his career in life insurance in 1964 as a home service representative and since 1967 has been with his present company. He has been a member of the "President's Cabinet," an award for the company's highest managers.

During 1974 and 1975, Reed served as state president of the Tennessee Fraternal Insurance Counsellors, where he was Fraternalist of the Year in 1975. As a member of the Jackson Association of Life Underwriters, he served in each office, including president in 1981-82.

The Gulf Coast Association of Life Underwriters meets every third Friday at the Best Western in Gulfport.

Sierra Club

The Sierra Club will sponsor a presentation on whales and dolphins of the Gulf of Mexico on Jan. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Marine Education Center, Hwy. 90, Biloxi. The public is invited and no admission is charged.

Wayne Hoggard, a fisheries biologist for the National Marine Fisheries, will present a video, 'Aerial Survey of the Cetaceans of the Gulf of Mexico,' and will discuss the surprising number of cetaceans in the Gulf. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 832-6380 or 435-2623.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL WITT

Witt-Lee

Danforth Chapel in Lawrence, Kansas was the setting for the December 31 marriage of Cynthia Ladner Lee of Bay St. Louis and Michael James Witt of Slidell. The Rev. Richard Orr officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Nolan Ladner and Helen Tate Ladner of Picayune. The groom's parents are J. L. and Virginia Witt of Lawrence. Organist Sue Evans provided nuptial music.

The bride was attired in a formal gown of ivory satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and sheer yoke topped with a Victorian neckline enhanced with seed pearls and embroidered lace. The long, fitted sleeves were embellished with lace and pearls and ended in calla points of lace. A double-pearled headband held her veil of silk illusion netting sprinkled with tiny flowers.

She carried a nosegay of pink carnations, red tea roses and fern with satin streamers.

Patricia A. Owen served as maid of honor. Russell Ford was best man and Wiley R. Lee II served as usher.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Jayhawk Room of Days Inn in Lawrence. A rehearsal dinner was hosted for members of the wedding party prior to the wedding at Sirloin Stockade. The couple resides in Slidell.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Gulf Coast Craftsmen's Guild

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Craftsmen's Guild invites craftsmen to join their organization. The Guild is a non-profit organization working to encourage the activities of hand craftsmen along the Gulf Coast in pursuit of their crafts. The organization was organized in 1973.

The guild sponsors at least two juried craft shows per year and is seeking area craft-people interested in participating to promote the creation of quality crafts.

The guild sponsors artist's scholarships at both the University of Southern Mississippi and William Carey College.

In order to exhibit in the guild shows, a member must have his work approved by standards committee following established guidelines.

New officers are Lois Powell, president; Nancy Smith, first vice-president; Ed Ondryak, second vice-president; Lena Johnston, secretary; and Melanie Hopkins treasurer.

Membership chairman is Barbara Sparacio, 1206 Wisteria Lane, Long Beach, MS 39560 or telephone 868-6691 for additional information.

Diamondhead Garden Club

Diamondhead Garden Club members met Jan. 17 at the Community Center for their regular meeting. Twelve guests were introduced by Betty Cooper. The Club was given by Keats Ashley.

Tax and I-Success have been played by Jean Easkan at the Reed N. Young Home and will be members of the club. It is her plan to start a Bluebird Trail and in the middle of February she will have 10 such houses in place.

A program for the children at Diamondhead Academy is planned for late March or early April to see the houses along the trail and observe the birds.

In conjunction with Arbor Day activities by the Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs at Beauvoir, Rosemary Badgalski gave an interesting talk on trees. She is a member of the National Arbor Day Foundation and felt all members would benefit from the wealth of information offered by this organization. The Arbor Day program at Beauvoir will be Feb. 9 at 1:30 p.m.

Mich has been written recently about recycling. Jackie Toca, garden club representative to the Diamondhead Recycling Committee, gave many helpful hints and suggestions on ways to cut down mountains of garbage and encouraged everyone to start a compost pile.

A design workshop conducted by Alice Brimmer will be held at the Community Center on Tuesday, Jan. 30. All members are invited to a meal and to bring a sack lunch. They will be able to use materials for the workshop are needed.

Flower Show chairman Jean Keen asked for volunteers to help with the Spring Flower Show scheduled for March 20. Members who are working on the garden club float met at Evelyn Kibler's home each Monday at 10 a.m.

A motion to change the by-laws from a limited membership of 99 to unlimited membership was made and passed. Eight new members were accepted by the club. They are Marge Blaisdell, Doris Gendusa, Deannie Golding, Louise Kolb, Joan Schenck, Bobbie Sorgenfrie, Margaret Thomas and Jean Coursey McWilliams.

Interesting and helpful horticultural tips were given by Betty Tracey. She advised that we restrain ourselves and not cut back plants which appear to have frozen. Let's play the "wait and see game." Nancy Schuback presented the Garden of the Month Award to Walter and Phyllis Hauer, 557 Golf Club Drive.

A field trip for all members to Boga River Orchid Greenhouse in Covington has been planned for Jan. 26.

"Exotic Orchids," those flowers that make us think of sun-washed beaches and star-filled nights, were the topic of the program presented by Lawrence Strausburger, honorary member of the garden club. He has been interested in orchids since 1964 and now has more than 1,000 plants in his collection.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Elois Connelly and Mrs. Carol Eckrich.

Pass carnival association names royalty candidates

St. Paul Carnival Association of Pass Christian announced the contestants who will vie for the title of King Christian LX and Queen Christiana in this year's carnival race.

Team One, king contestant is Jeffrey P. Taylor. Taylor and his wife, Bettina, are the parents of two young sons. The family resides on Pineville Road.

Taylor is the owner and operator of his own business, Taylor Made Lawn Care. He attended St. Paul Elementary School and is a graduate of St. Stanislaus. He received a business degree from Mississippi State University.

Taylor is a member of St. Paul Parish, the Carnival Association and the Pass Christian Historical Society.

His queen contestant is Holly D. Killeen. She and her son, Boyd, live on Vista Drive. Ms. Killeen is a head teller at Hancock Bank.

She is a graduate of O. Perry Walker High School. She attended Jeff Davis Junior College. Ms. Killeen is a member of St. Paul Parish, St. Paul Carnival Association and Beach Vista Home Owners Association.

King contestant for Team Two is John L. Ulrich Jr. Ulrich and his wife, Bridget, and three children reside in Pass Christian.

He is a graduate of Pass Christian High School. Ulrich is employed by CSX Railroad. He is a member of St. Paul Parish, the Carnival Association and Gulf Coast Fisherman's Association.

His queen contestant is Kathy Rogers. She and her husband, Gene, and daughters Lindsey and Cristy, live on East Second Street.

Mrs. Rogers attended St. Paul School and is a Pass Christian High School graduate. She is an employee of the Regina Company.

She is a member of St. Paul Church, St. Paul Carnival Association and is assistant director of the Modern Woodman Youth Organization.

The official charging of the four contestants at a champagne party on Wednesday evening began the official 1990 carnival season in Pass Christian.

First weekend of activities at the school will be Jan. 26, 27 and 28. The countdown for king and queen will be on Feb. 12.

The annual Mardi Gras ball will take place on Feb. 24 at 8 p.m. Call St. Paul School for information on purchasing tickets after Feb. 16.

The parade will be on Feb. 25 at 1 p.m. Dr. Charles D. Taylor, who was king in 1953 and lone Russell, who was queen in 1935, will serve as grand marshals. Theme for 1990 is 'Parading the Pass—Parading the Past.' This marks 75 years of parading in Pass Christian, 1915-1990.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire

The tang of citrus fruit, even just the sight of bright oranges and tangerines and lemons and grapefruit, bring a touch of sunshine to these winter days and a tasty touch to foods cooked with citrus.

With large navel oranges on special at Delchamps, and navel also on sale at Jitney Jungle and Winn-Dixie, you can indulge in cooking with oranges, also enjoying them out of hand. In fact, I prefer eating an orange or so to drinking orange juice—and that pulp is so-o-o good for you!

So, snap up a whole fryer or so from Winn-Dixie, or leg quarters from National at a bargain and use citrus in your cooking, such as in:

ROAST LEMON AND ORANGE CHICKEN

(You may use an orange and a lemon, as suggested, or two of either.)

1 orange
1 lemon
2 Tblsp. butter, softened
3 to 3 1/2 lb. broiler-fryer
Pepper, salt to your taste
Grate the zests from the orange and lemon (avoid the bitter white part) and mix with the butter. Squeeze the juice from the orange and lemon into a bowl.

Make a half-inch slit in the skin of the chicken down the line of the breast bone, slip your fingers under the skin and ease it away from the breast. Insert the zest and butter mixture, forcing it well down on both sides. Pour in the juices.

Place the squeezed orange and lemon halves into the bird's cavity, and close with a skewer—no need to sew it! Season the outside of the bird, then roast in a covered roasting pan or wrapped in foil, for 1 1/2 hours at 350 degrees. Skim fat from the cooking juices and serve as a sauce. —From 'Just Chicken' (Barron's).

And, with long grain rice, a special bargain at National, combine it with oranges in:

ORANGE RICE

(This goes well with pork or ham or chicken. And, you might even wish to add pecans or almonds to the dish for extra zip.)

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
4 Tblsp. grated orange rind
1 1/2 cups orange juice
1/2 cup water

2 cups uncooked white rice
In a medium saucepan, melt the butter, and stir in parsley, orange rind, juice and water, and bring to a boil. Stir in rice. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 25 minutes or until liquid is absorbed. (Eight servings.)—From 'Cross Creek Kitchens' Triad Publishing Co. Inc.)

With lean ground beef specially priced at Winn-Dixie, along with bargains in ground beef also at Jitney Jungle, let's spark the tastebuds and spare the budget with:

SILLY CHILI

(This is one of those easy skillet meals teaming ground beef and vegetables, with a slightly different twist in the cooking which speeds it up and leaves the vegetables slightly crisp. It was given its name by the author's young sons.)

1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
1 small bottle catsup
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
3 ribs celery, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 to 2 Tblsp. chili powder
Pepper, salt to your taste
2 cans beans in chili gravy
Mix ground beef with catsup, and place in large skillet over high heat. Chop vegetables rather coarsely and put in covered saucepan with a fourth cup of water. Cook just a few minutes—leave a little crunch in those vegetables this time.

Season the meat with chili powder, pepper and salt. Dump in the cooked vegetables and canned beans, and serve in soup bowls to six hungry people. Corn bread is delicious with this meal. —From Dottie Wellington's 'Let's Cook.'

And some of those minute steaks on special (in family packs) at Jitney Jungle would make good:

STEAKS WITH PEPPER

6 individual steaks
2 Tblsp. peppercorns
Salad oil

Dry the meat on paper towels. Place peppercorns in a plastic bag and crush with a hammer. Rub steaks with a little salad oil and pat on a coating of crushed pepper on each side, pressing into the meat with the heel of your hand. Let stand 30 minutes at least—two or three hours is better.

Heat one or two heavy skillets enough so that steaks can cook in one layer. When skillets are hot, salt lightly and add steaks. Cook briefly on the first side, then on the other for medium rare. The time varies according to your preference. (Also, you may not want yours as peppery—I do!) Serve with:

STEAK SAUCE

3 Tblsp. butter
1/4 cup chopped green onion
1/2 cup beef bouillon
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
When steaks are done, remove to hot platter, and drain off any fat. Add butter and chopped green onion to skillet. Cook 2 or 3 minutes, add bouillon, stirring briskly to get all the brown bits from the bottom of the pan. Add Worcestershire and pour over steaks. Serve at once.—Also from 'Let's Cook.'

ORDINANCE #207
AN ORDINANCE REPEALING A PORTION OF ORDINANCE NO. 196, ESTABLISHING RATES AND CHARGES FOR THE WATER AND GAS SYSTEM FOR THE CITY OF WAVELAND, HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI

BE IT ORDAINED BY the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Waveland as follows:
WHEREAS, the Board did adopt on October 18, 1989, Ordinance No. 196, setting out certain rates to be charged for water and gas services within the City of Waveland; and,

WHEREAS, the Board has determined that there are certain inequities which have an immediate deleterious effect upon the citizens and businesses of the City of Waveland; and,

WHEREAS, immediate action is necessary in order to rectify these inequities;

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Waveland as follows:

Section 1: That that portion of Section 2 of Ordinance No. 196, being subsections 1, 2 and 3 under the heading of "Commercial Rates" be and the same is repealed.

Section 2: There is hereby substituted for those repealed portions of Ordinance No. 196, the following:

Rates charged by the City for water service in the City of Waveland shall be the same as those water rates in effect and being utilized by the Waveland Water and Gas Department on NOVEMBER 1, 1989.

All rates charged since that date shall be retroactive

Spring will reveal results of winter's low temps

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Winter didn't slip in silently on a sound deadening blanket of pure, white snow. There was nothing romantic about it. Instead, it hit with one heck of a wallop, the roar of wintry winds sweeping in from the north and a deafening crash as temperatures hit record lows.

If this was just the beginning of winter, I worry about what lies ahead. It was cold, and the wind chill made it worse. And to think just a couple of weeks ago, as the seed catalogs began to arrive in the mail, we were starting to think about spring.

Evidence of the late December cold is evident all around us. You don't even have to go outside. Just look at the heating bill for December.

Outside, parts of the landscape looks as though someone took a blow torch or flame thrower to them. Damage to evergreen plants is evident everywhere. Damage to deciduous plants isn't as evident, but it's there anyway.

Try to find hope in the thought that some of the evident damage is just cosmetic. When spring arrives, damaged leaves will be shed and replaced damage to root systems would not be evident as quickly, but there is a strong possibility of such injury with it being masked by the frozen leaves. The possibility also exists of twig, branch and whole plant injury or death, which won't be evident until spring.

It is not likely the leaf injury zen soil and the leaves are exposed to the sun and drying winds.

Plants in containers with their roots above the soil line and therefore exposed to the low air temperatures may have sustained considerable root injury and now be dead.

When Fred Galle spoke on azaleas at Mississippi State University in October, he said azalea roots are more cold sensitive than the tops.

There is no doubt that the spring of 1990 won't be as colorful as some past springs because of frozen flower buds on azaleas and perhaps on other flowering trees and shrubs. The extent of injury will vary with the type of plant, variety and location in the landscape and also the part of the state.

There are differences in cold hardiness among the many different varieties of azaleas, but some that I checked showed flower bud injury.

Several azalea flower buds when cut were brown all the way through, and browning is an obvious sign of low temperature injury in azaleas. The leaves on these same plants were dead and dry when the plants are supposed to be evergreen.

The full extent of the injury won't be evident until spring, and my hope is that the plants weren't completely killed. We will all have to wait for spring, and maybe even early summer, for all symptoms of injury related to the freeze to develop. Don't under any circumstances head for the yard with pruning shears or saws at this time.

Other landscape plants may have sustained considerable cold injury. One local gardener reported to me that when he examined his plants after the freeze, all of his crape myrtles had cracks in their stems just above the ground level. He by healthy new ones.

A quick survey of landscape plants shows a lot of leaf injury or what may be called winter burn. Because the injury developed so quickly after the temperature dropped, it is more than likely the direct result of leaves freezing.

Leaf injury resulting from evident on so many different plants resulted from desiccation, the third type of injury associated with cold because while the soil around plants may have frozen on the surface it didn't freeze deeply or remain frozen. Plant leaves dry out in winter when the roots are in fro-

Don't deny yourself a longer, fuller life.

You can deny the symptoms of heart disease, but it won't go away. Your symptoms may pass, but the damage goes on. Often until it's too late.

Be especially alert to the symptoms of a heart attack. Chest pain and pressure are the most common. Pain may radiate down your arm, shoulders or neck. There's also shortness of breath. Cold sweat. Dizziness. Faintness and nausea.

Sometimes only a few symptoms occur.

Sometimes more. Sometimes the symptoms can even be due to another problem.

Only one thing is certain. The sooner heart problems are treated, the better your chance of recovering to live a normal, healthy life.

That's why we're here. The Heart Emergency Service at NorthShore Regional Medical Center is the first of its kind in this area. Located in our Emergency Department, we save lives by detecting heart problems rapidly and providing necessary treatment.

If you experience any symptoms of a heart attack, get immediate medical attention. Anytime, day or night, you can call our emergency 24-Hour Heartline™ at 1-800-HEART-13. An emergency care professional is available around the clock to answer questions, give advice or even dispatch an ambulance if necessary.

The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center offers a complete range of cardiac care services. That's important to you during those first critical hours following a heart attack. And although you'll probably never need them, it's good to know our heart team is available 24 hours a day.

We employ powerful clot-dissolving drugs. Drugs that can save lives by stopping and, in some instances, actually reversing the effects of heart attacks. But the sooner these drugs are administered the better the chance of a complete recovery.

And advanced diagnostic capabilities, including our state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory, help us assess and treat heart problems more accurately and effectively than ever.

We also offer educational programs that help people prevent heart attacks, and rehabilitation services that help heart patients recover faster and more fully.

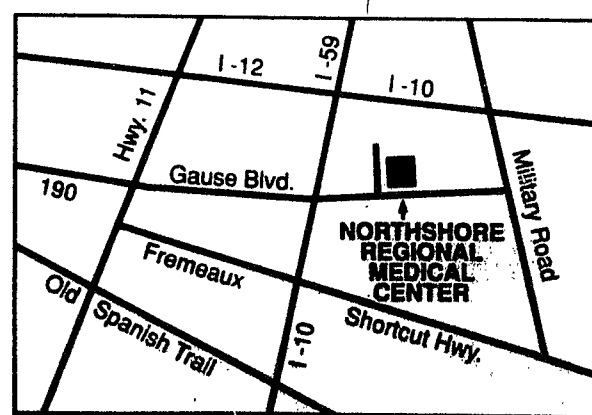

Learn more about The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center by calling (504) 641-MDMD and we'll send you a free brochure that describes our cardiac care services in greater detail.

Remember, don't deny any symptoms of a heart attack. If you have symptoms, go to the nearest hospital emergency department. If you're close to NorthShore Regional Medical Center, use the Heart Emergency Service in our Emergency Department located just east of Interstate 10 on 190—Exit 266—Gause Boulevard. Or call the 24-Hour Heartline™ at 1-800-HEART-13. Don't delay. Because self-denial is hazardous to your health.
